

STOCK MARKET VERY LANGUID

Bank Statement of Absorbing Interest in Wall Street.

ACTUAL CONDITION UNKNOWN

REVIEW OF OPERATIONS FOR THE PAST WEEK.

New York, Oct. 31.-Today's bank statement proved to be the only thing of influence in the stock market today. A number of estimates are compiled every Friday of the week's currency movement from the bank officials themselves. Yesterday none of those estimates were regarded as reliable. These estimates showed a cash outgo for the week of less than $13,000,000 and some of them ran to over $15,000,000. Last Saturday the bank statement in its item of cash reserves falled to show the estimated decrease by Today's statement failed to have a consoling effect on the stock market, and a very languid upward movement of prices resulted. It was partly due to the fact that there was a skeptical feeling yesterday as to whether the formidable decrease in cash would be reflected in today's bank statement. There is a belief that the discrepancies in the bank statement may be explained by cash operations between the banks and trust companies, which do not appear in the reports of currency movements. The increase in loans was not unexpected and is attributed to preparations for Nov. 1 settlements and to borrowings by eastern institutions in connection with their large cash withdrawals. The closing was steady, but very dull and with the advancing tendency checked.

Review of the Week. Today's statement failed to have a Review of the Week.

The tightening of the money market this week has had a repressive influence on the stock market and has had some effect also in checking the broadening tendency of the bond market, which had begun to reach notable proportions. Following the bank and trust company failures at Baltimore and Pittsburg last week came the news of a run on a St. Louis trust company by some classes of their depositors and the enforcement of the sixty days no-western money markets may keep the money there over the crop moving per-iod. The developments of the regular crop movement requirements has dem-onstrated that the season's needs for fect has been a precipitate break in the rates for foreign exchange to the import point, which has spread the pressure of the situation into the for-eign money markets. Merchants have been heavy buyers of cotton during the week, impressed with the fear of the formation of another corpor in ways. week, impressed with the fear of the formation of another corner in our cotton market. The outgo of wheat and corn also has expanded. The rise in local money rates has checked the demand for exchange to cover previous sales, which have hitherto steadily absorbed the supply of commercial hits. saies, which have nitherto steadily absorbed the supply of commercial bills as fast as they came into the market. The current demand for gold on the continent is keen, but the final outcome of the exchange situation is not certain although it seems clear that the New York money market has secured control of the exchange situation, with power to get gold imports at need.

Movement in Copper.

Operations in stocks have shrunk to a few special movements, due to causes affecting individual stocks. The quar-rel among the copper interests in Mon-tana has been the basis for activity in Amalgamated Copper, and United States Steel has been somewhat affected by the informatical disciplinaries.

by some classes of their depositors and the enforcement of the sixty days notice of withdrawal allowed to the trust companies. This condition led to large withdrawals of currency from New York to reinforce the position at St. Louis. At the same time the heavy shipments to New Orleans for crop moving purposes have continued and the long delayed demand from the west for moving the grain crops has set in. On Wednesday the transfers of currency out of New York through the sub-treasury reached the unprecedented total of $2.950,000, of which $2.100,000 was to St. Louis, which was also the highest record for a single day's shipment to any one point. The emergency shipments to St. Louis are believed to be a temporary need, although the increasing activity of the western money markets may keep the onstrated that the season's needs for that purpose must be met freely from New York as usual and has disproved the expectation that western resources would be sufficient to meet the requirements, which has been maintained in some quarters. The indulgence of that expectation last fall proved costly to a large speculative element in the stock market and the memory of last fall's experience begets a spirit of caution. The spirit of distrust of banking institutions revealed by the St. Louis episode has induced conservatism in the banking world in general and a disposition to conserve reserves. The effect of these factors has been a rise in the local rates for money, both on call and on time. But the further effect has been a precipitate break in the rates for foreign avenages to the substitutions. Preferred
